Pope Advises Parents They Need Teachers' Trust, Appreciation

By CAROL GLATZ

Without respectfully collaborating with teachers and schools, parents will risk being on their own when it comes to educating their children and be at a greater disadvantage when facing the challenges emerging from today's culture, mass media and technology, Pope Francis said.

Speaking to hundreds of parents, the pope told them that "teachers are like you—dedicated each day in the educational service of your children."

His comments came to about 1,400 members and guests of the Italian Parents' Association during an audience at the Vatican's Paul VI hall Sept. 7.

Praising the group's efforts promoting the family and education as guided by Christian principles, the pope invited them to always foster and build trust with teachers and schools.

If it is all right to "complain about limitations" or defects when it comes to schools and teachers, it is also "imperative to treasure them as the most invaluable allies in the task of education, which you together carry forward," said the pope, who taught high school students as a young Jesuit in Argentina.

Today, "families no longer appreciate like before the job teachers have and (teachers)—who are often badly paid—feel the parents' presence in the school as being an uncomfortable intrusion," which all ends in a situation, he said, where the parents are kept at bay or considered "adversaries."

"To change this situation, someone has to take the first step, overcoming any fear of the other and generously holding out one's hand," he said.

"That is why I invite you to always cultivate and foster trust toward schools and teachers; without them, you risk remaining on your own in your educational efforts and being increasingly unable to confront new educational challenges that emerge from today's culture, society, mass media and new technologies," the pope said.

Everyone has their role to play and no one entity can substitute the other, he added, which is why education demands collaboration, frequent communication and mutual trust.

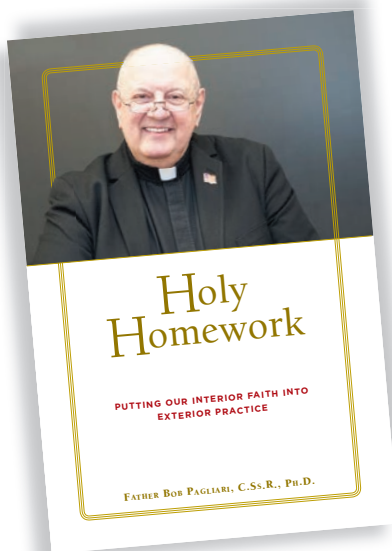

"Dear parents, your children are the most precious gift you have received. Remember how to take care of it with commitment and generosity, giving children the freedom necessary to grow and mature into people who will one day be able to be open to the gift of life," he said.

However, he told them, do not let their "vigilance over the dangers that threaten the lives" of children prevent them from being able to look at the world with confidence or from showing kids the best ways to grow as people, citizens and Christians.

The pope said both parents and teachers need to teach kids the difference between good, not so good and bad, and help kids learn to make such moral and ethical distinctions on their own. —CNS

Many of the popular and enduring Holy Homework columns by Catholic New York columnist Father Bob Pagliari, C.Ss.R., have been published as a book.

Father Bob's fluid and graceful writing matches real-life examples with timeless themes such as Mothers and Fathers, Holiness and Mercy, and Friendship and Thanksgiving. His Holy Homework assignments offer opportunities for reflection and action.

'Touring Tuesdays' Showcase Catholic Schools

Parents looking to place their children in a Catholic school in the archdiocese are encouraged to schedule a tour at a nearby school at any time, or attend one of the upcoming Touring Tuesday open house events being held at 133 participating Catholic elementary schools across the Bronx, Manhattan and Staten Island, as well as in Westchester, Dutchess, Putnam, Orange, Rockland, Sullivan and Ulster counties.

The first Touring Tuesdays are scheduled for Nov.

Catholic Youth Day to Make 'Bold' Statement

The archdiocese's Office of Youth Ministry is hosting New York Catholic Youth Day at the Westchester County Center in White Plains Saturday, Oct. 20, beginning with registration at 8 a.m.

More than 1,500 high school students are expected to attend the daylong event with speakers and music. The day will end with Mass.

The event's theme is "Be Bold" from Pope Francis' youth day message from Luke 1:30, "Do not be afraid, Mary, for you have found favor with God."

The registration fee is $25, if paid by Sept. 21, and $35, if paid between Sept. 22 and Oct. 6. The registration fee includes a T-shirt, bag and lunch.

Information: (914) 367-8329 or www.oymny.org/nycyd

13 and Dec. 4, and subsequent sessions will be held in 2019 on Jan. 8, Jan. 29, Feb. 12, March 5, March 19 and April 9.

Touring Tuesdays are open houses that allow parents interested in either kindergarten through eighth grade or in early education programs—including pre-K 3, pre-K 4 or free universal pre-K—an opportunity to meet principals and teachers and to see classrooms in action.

Parents may make a reservation by calling a bilingual phone line (646) 461-7398 or research information about every school in the archdiocese at catholicschoolsny.org through the interactive school map or the "Find a School" button.

Parents may also complete an online inquiry form to request information about specific schools and Touring Tuesday events.

Grant to St. Raymond for Baseball Field Renovations

St. Raymond High School for Boys was awarded a $20,000 grant from the Hyde and Watson Foundation to renovate its baseball field on the grounds of St. Joseph's School for the Deaf in the Bronx. The renovations, which will be completed in the fall, include new clay in the infield, new sod in the infield, baseline area and rear backstop, a new pitcher's mound and catcher's box, and irrigation repairs.

"This project will pave the way for the future success of our program," said Marc DeLuca, St. Raymond varsity baseball coach. "We look forward to playing on our new field in 2019."

Manhattan College Students Attend Leadership Summit

Manhattan College seniors Kaiyun Chen and Tim Gress participated in the second biennial Student Ambassador Leaders Together summit organized by Catholic Relief Services in Washington, D.C.

The SALT summit, July 16-18, featured skill-building sessions focused on leadership, campus organizing and advocacy. The students tested their new skills with congressional staff on Capitol Hill.

"I am inspired by the passionate and influential people we were able to meet at the summit," Chen said. "I am also inspired by recognizing the fact that I have the luxury of choice. I realize the power I have to do more, not just as an individual, but as a Jasper, as a CRS ambassador and as part of a global community."

The summit is part of CRS' Student Ambassador program, which has welcomed 150 students from 58 colleges since 2014.

"It was great to learn more about CRS's global reach," Gress said. "Watching and hearing from their people that go to the different countries and into the field was eye-opening."

College, Elementary Students Partner on Digital Projects

Students from Mount St. Mary College and Bishop Dunn Memorial School, both in Newburgh, worked together for three months to develop digital media projects. The students created websites, podcasts and digital storybooks.

The course was taught by Nancy Benfer and Donna Perk, who are staff members at Bishop Dunn and adjunct professors at Mount St. Mary.

"This was an amazing class, for both Bishop Dunn and Mount St. Mary College students," Ms. Perk said. "The pieces I read and saw were fantastic."

Bishop Dunn is a Catholic school for students in pre-K through eighth grade.

St. John's Starting Online Public Health Master's

St. John's University is launching an online Master of Public Health program in January 2019 to fit the lives of busy professionals. The program will prepare students to support health promotion and disease prevention efforts in communities and health programs around the world.

There are no class times, allowing students to study when and where they want in accordance with course requirements. Applications are being accepted for entrance into the program.
